Essential requirements for receipt of an article for publication

If these requirements are not met, the manuscript will be returned to the author for modification.

- Submit the manuscript as an MS Word document (not PDF); make sure that the manuscript has an abstract, resúmen, Vancouver style references and figure legends (if applicable).
- Submit the title page and manuscript as separate MS Word documents (not PDF).
- Include a cover letter.
- Comply with double-blind peer review requirements.
- Submit the authorship affidavit filled out by each author.
- Submit the completed checklist required as an appendix to the manuscript.
- Address Good Publication Practices in industry-funded studies.
- Document (in the cover letter) that written patient consent for publication has been obtained (applies for articles containing descriptions of individual patients, such as Case Reports).
- In the case of a clinical trial, include the registration number and dates of enrollment, as well as the approval of the institution's ethics committee.
- Include ClinicalTrials.gov and MEDLINE in the literature search when conducting a Systematic Review.

Automatic Rejection

Manuscripts will be automatically rejected if

- Authors do not obtain written consent from the patient for publication (in the case of articles containing descriptions of individual patients, such as Case Reports).
- Authors of a clinical trial do not obtain approval by the institution's ethics committee and, depending on the type of trial, do not prospectively register the trial before enrolling patients.
- The response rate to clinical surveys is less than 60%.
